DataSys promotes Michael Newman to Senior Engagement Manager

Marlborough, Mass. – April 16, 2007 – On Friday, March 30th, DataSys employees, along with Mike Newman's wife and youngest son, celebrated Mike's recent promotion to Senior Engagement Manager. While cutting his Red Sox theme cake, Mike said that he was honored to be taking on a role that will allow him to work more closely with all customers.

As the Senior Engagement Manager, a newly established role at DataSys, Mike will have customer-wide responsibility for working with customers to map their business needs with the appropriate modules, implementation services and/or customizations, according to DataSys President Lisa Daigle.

In his new role, Mike will continue to apply his subject matter expertise to his longstanding relationships with DataSys customers and help put DataSys' best foot forward by playing a lead role on the more challenging opportunities requiring a DataSys team effort. According to DataSys President, Lisa Daigle, "During his seven-year tenure at DataSys, many customers have benefited from working with Mike – the consummate professional, a Great Plains guru, and a true Red Sox fan."

Says DataSys customer Karen Osborn of Rentacrate, Inc.:

"RentaCrate has worked with DataSys Corporation since 1998 when we were a small, local company. Fast-forwarding to the present, Rentacrate is a nationwide company with multiple offices, warehouses, and its own fleet of trucks that ply the nation's highways with a full suite of products for moving households and offices. Mike Newman has been an invaluable resource to Rentacrate--we periodically talk with Mike, whether it's to bounce ideas off him or ask him to show us how to use Great Plains more effectively. While Mike is a Great Plains expert, we would be doing a disservice to Mike if we didn't also mention that he's the consummate professional and a pleasure to work with. Rentacrate was delighted to hear that Mike will be playing a more senior and strategic role with customers, including Rentacrate."
